WORLD PEACE:
WHAT DOES IT LOOK LIKE TO YOU!

World Peace...what does it look like to you? Is it possible? Can you make a difference? Have more questions?

Share your feelings, ideas and questions with our panelists from Louisiana State University and Southern University.

When: This Forum is on Sunday, October 9, 6 pm

Where: International Cultural Center, at 1513 Baton Rouge, 3365 Daisyville Drive

In 1998, through a resolution adopted by the Institute of All Nations, Inc., October 1-4 observed as World Peace Day. Louisiana's World Peace Day Committee and other volunteers have worked together to plan and hold events recognizing World Peace Day in an effort to eliminate violence and promote peace in individuals, families, countries and nations. Events recognizing World Peace Day this year include the exhibit, The Century of Women, Interfaith Service and a Panel Discussion on World Peace.

Obama urges blacks to fight

Mark A. Sisson

President Barack Obama speaks with U.S. soldiers at the 100th anniversary of the end of slavery in Washington, D.C.

President Barack Obama urged African Americans to fight for their country and to support the military during a speech in Washington, D.C., on Monday. Obama said that the military is the backbone of the nation and that African Americans have a long history of service. He called on them to continue to serve and to support the troops who are currently deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Obama's speech came at a time when the military is facing a recruitment crisis. He said that the military is a place where African Americans can find a sense of purpose and pride. He also called on them to support the troops who are currently deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Obama's speech was well-received by the crowd. Many people were moved by his words and some even came forward to shake his hand. Obama's message was clear: African Americans have a duty to serve and to support the troops who are currently deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Obama's speech was a powerful reminder of the importance of the military. He said that the military is a place where African Americans can find a sense of purpose and pride. He also called on them to support the troops who are currently deployed in Iraq and Afghanistan.

STATE & NATION

Seminar scrapped after bid

Wendell H. Jones

A seminar scheduled for next month at Louisiana State University has been scrapped after a bid to hold it at Southern University was rejected. The seminar, which was to be held at LSU, was intended to focus on the state of the economy and the impact of the recession. However, the bid to hold it at Southern University was rejected by the LSU board of regents.
